

ABSTRACT

A disc player for playing multi-layer optical discs includes two laser sources for generating two respective laser beams directed at two respective data layers. The reflected beams are directed at respective detectors generating two data streams corresponding to the data from the two data layers. The two data streams can be generated simultaneously.